One of the main tasks of a social institution is to ensure the constitutional right to protect their life and health. Maintaining the physical and mental health of the residents is impossible without well-organized leisure time and full-fledged organization of their free time. The playground provides a high level of interaction between children, which allows them to communicate with others and develop social skills. One of the well-known advantages of installing play and sports complexes is that it gives residents an opportunity to move actively. Physical activity affects the physiological functions of the whole organism. One of the best ways to keep kids physically active is to go to a playground where they can run, jump, climb, etc. The arrangement of the playground is necessary for the physical, social, emotional and cognitive development of residents.
